

Materials List

You will need:

Paintings that aren't working (two or three, done in acrylics or water-mixable oils):

Contact Karen if you're interested in doing work in a different medium, such as pastels or watercolors

Additional surfaces to paint on, if you'd like to start something new:

Canvas, canvas board, illustration board, gessoed masonite, painting panel, or paper

Any reference materials you may have used for the original paintings:

i.e. your photos (best to have them printed out) and sketches

A good selection of your own photographs to paint from, in case you decide to start something new:

In choosing potential photographs to paint from, look for subjects that are not overly complicated. (Remember to Keep It Simple, Sweetie!)

Your paint brushes:

Bring whatever you use (long-handled brushes)

Water container:

Preferably plastic – large yogurt or cottage cheese containers work well

Paper towels

Palette:

a disposable paper palette OR white paper plates – the kind with a waxy finish)

Your paints (or pastels, if that's what you're working in):

Bring whatever you work with. Make sure you have enough to work with, especially of the colors you love most. Also include both Titanium White AND Zinc White (or Transparent Mixing White – same thing)

“The Masters” brush cleaner:

A small tub will last you a long time

Clothes you can paint in
